Foreword to the Marlborough Records:

A RETROSPECT.

THE printing of the Vital Records, the Burial Ground Inscriptions, and the Proprietors' Records of Marlborough is a realization in small part of a plan formed in 1885 to copy and print the records of several of the old Massachusetts Towns in the pathway of the westward emigration from the coast from 1635 to 1660. Some of the details of this plan were discussed at length in certain quarters, and with competent authorities, but I received little encouragement to proceed in an undertaking which seemed to the majority of those gentlemen to be attended with insurmountable difficulties. I gratefully remember, however, that there were two or three who took the opposite view, and who offered assistance. Four of the towns contemplated in the project were Watertown, Concord, Sudbury and Marlborough, and I felt assured that even the announcement of the beginning of work in these important places would give an impetus to record publication in other parts of the State, which was then my principal object.

During the next three years the enterprise was under consideration, but various other interests interposed to delay it, and before arrangements could be perfected I unexpectedly found myself involved in the undertaking of printing the second series of the Worcester Records, from which, in consequence of certain unforeseen and singular difficulties, I was not wholly freed until 1898. During the period 1876–1882 I had completed the Worcester Records to 1783, including the Proprietors' Book, and also the Records of the Worcester County Court of General Sessions from 1731 to 1737, the latter being, I believe, the first example of printed county records in Massachusetts.

Considerable activity in record work was manifested in various places in the State from 1880 to 1890, mostly through individual effort. Dr. Samuel A. Green began the publication of the Groton Records in 1880, and Mr. Henry S. Nourse prepared three volumes of Lancaster Records in 1884 and later. The most notable instance during this period was the printing of the Dedham Records in six volumes under the supervision of Don Gleason Hill, Esq. A little later, efforts of this kind began to multiply. Probably the first in Massachusetts, consecutively exerted, was that of printing the Brookline (Muddy River) Records, the first volume appearing in 1874, the others not until 1889.

In 1890 I was glad to be informed by Mr. C. A. Stearns that the Watertown Historical Society was about to begin the printing of the local records with the aid of appropriations by the town. About this time I made a verbal proposition to Mr. George Tolman of Concord to print the records of that town upon my own responsibility, if he would furnish the copy, and this offer seemed to strike him favorably. Shortly after, meeting Mr. Francis E. Blake of Boston, who has always been, during my thirty years' acquaintance with him, a ready and potent force in record work, I mentioned this circumstance, and he offered to assume one-fourth of the expense. Thus reinforced, I renewed my proposition in writing, to which Mr. Tolman replied that he would, before giving his decision, make an attempt to induce the town at its annual meeting to appropriate a sum to enable the Concord Antiquarian Society to carry forward the undertaking. In this effort he was successful, so far as the printing of the vital records of the town was concerned, and his book is one of the best prepared under the old method, while his incomparable index modifies in some degree the evils of that system. Mr. Tolman wrote that he desired to follow the scientific plan in the printing of records of this class, and avoid the confusing use of an index, but probably he was overruled.

For several years I was not able to give further consideration to this locality, my efforts in reorganizing the record work under the Systematic History Fund being confined to towns in Worcester County. The burning of the city building in Marlborough in 1902, and the narrow escape of the records from destruction, caused my thoughts to turn again in that direction, and I was urged by friends in the New-England Historic Genealogical Society and by others to undertake the work of copying and printing the vital records of Marlborough at once. I was obliged, however, to await the completion of the new city hall before a suitable place for copying the records could be provided, and it was not until the fall of 1906 that this task was begun. In the meantime I secured copies of the church records and of the gravestone inscriptions. The Vital Records of Sudbury were published in 1903 by the New-England Historic Genealogical Society, at the charge of the Eddy Town-Record Fund,

I had a deeper interest in Marlborough than in any other place in Massachusetts. It was the parent town not only of the settlements in a large adjacent territory but of others more remote, and its records have a particular value in connection with the first history of all these. It was my native town, and had it not been for the difficulty in securing the copy of its records at that period, I should probably have put forth my efforts there instead of in Worcester, and made it the first example of a town with all its records in print. I made an examination of the manuscript volumes in 1883 with a strong inclination to engage in the work of printing, but I was then overtasked. I experienced peculiar satisfaction in being able to make even a beginning at a late date.

It was in Marlborough that I first thought of making use of type to enable me to produce copies in number of certain historical data from original materials which I had collected. Acting under the impulse I procured a small press and type enough to set an octavo page, and thus unknowingly acquired a power, which, as later developments have shown, has proved effective in carrying out the various enterprises in which I have engaged, as otherwise they must have failed of accomplishment through lack of pecuniary means and in the face of the discouragements and other obstacles encountered. This was in March, 1871, and soon after, I returned to Worcester, and for the next two or three years other interests prevailed, but what at a later period became my main object was kept in mind. Facility in the use of type came slowly, for I never received an hour's instruction in a printing office, and have always followed my own methods. It is, perhaps, remarkable that I have many times been solicited to print books for others at high prices. A few of these offers I have accepted that I might be able to patch over financial bare spots in the record work.

I hope sometime to give in detail an account of the various undertakings in the line of record preservation with which I have been connected since I began, in the early seventies, with the idea, crude and imperfect, of subjecting to classification for easy reference manuscript materials in public depositories, many of which were then hidden or unknown, and in many places practically inaccessible; but only a brief summary can be given here. Thirty-five years ago the interest in such matters was mainly antiquarian, and the few examples in print in this line had been inspired from that standpoint. Genealogical research was not then the powerful factor it is to-day. As the idea expanded and developed I came to regard the work chiefly in its practical and scientific aspects, and I applied the term Systematic History as best explaining its purpose to meet the necessities of all inquirers and investigators.

My fortunate meeting with Mr. Samuel E. Staples in 1869 resulted in the formation of The Worcester Society of Antiquity five years later. The Worcester Records in eight volumes were published by that Society, some financial aid being given by the City. In 1882–3 considerable work was done at the State House with the intention of including certain early archives of the Commonwealth in the printed Collections of the Society, but this project encountered remonstrances of such a nature that I abandoned it, as, for other reasons, I did the one to print the County Probate and Land Records in 1891. The purpose in these propositions was to have the Society maintain its place as the leader in the record work.

I formulated a plan sometime before 1890 to require the towns in Massachusetts to print their records, but this met with little favor. Its substantial features are embodied in the Act of 1902.

The formation of The Massachusetts Record Society in 1891 was an abortive attempt to reorganize the record work upon a practical basis. Considerable was, however, accomplished, in western Massachusetts and in New Hampshire; the results in the latter locality were turned over to the State Board of Vital Statistics at Concord.

Pursuing the work since 1898 under the operation of the Systematic History Fund, I have been able to secure copies and to print the vital records of more than thirty towns in central Massachusetts.

THE FIRST BURYING GROUND.

Hudson and other authorities are, I think, in error in stating that the oldest burying ground in Marlborough is the one "adjoining the Old Common" (now on Prospect Street, in the rear of the High School building). No date earlier than 1713 has been found in this ground, while the one at Spring Hill contains quite a number of stones with dates before 1700, notably the one to Captain Hutchinson, who was killed by the Indians in 1675. Some of the early records of Marlborough are missing, and the time of the laying out of the Spring Hill ground cannot now be determined, but it is quite early referred to as the "ould ground on burrying hill." If, as is asserted, the first meeting house was built on the Old Common site, it was a departure from the usual custom to locate the burying ground at a distance.

At a meeting of the Proprietors of Marlborough, April 8, 1706, it was ordered that the land exchanged with John Perry, the tailor, two and one-half acres, adjoining the Meeting House Land, "shall be for a Trayning Place and a Burying Place forever." This seems to fix the date of the opening of the Prospect Street ground.

EXPLANATION.

The Inscriptions from each burying ground are generally but not invariably arranged in alphabetical order. The family names of many of the married women are supplied in the notes, and the index of these and of the names out of place should be consulted.

The copies are verbatim, but, while an occasional peculiarity in the text is given, I have not attempted anything in the way of facsimile, for such efforts in type are only halfway expedients. The name of the subject is printed in SMALL CAPITALS, with certain exceptions in which the long ſ appears. The lines on the stones are indicated by dividing marks, and an inscription can readily be reconstructed.

The Inscriptions in the three Marlborough burial places were copied by Mr. GEORGE MAYNARD, who has performed similar valuable service for me in many other localities in Massachusetts.

The printing of this book was undertaken at the suggestion and request of a friend, and the work has been carried through under the pressure of numerous difficulties, and at such intervals of time, night or day, as could be spared from the discharge of many other duties. So far as the type-setting and presswork is concerned, the book is entirely the work of my own hands. It was printed upon a press which I purchased in 1887 for thirty-eight dollars, and some of the type used was in service many years ago. The production of this volume has been a reminiscence of former experiences.

[Beneath this mound are preserved the earthly remains of that truly venerable theologian, Robert Breck. His celestial part has gone to the myriads of angels in heaven, and to the spirits of the just made perfect. He was of a discriminating genius; and by nature a man of enlarged mind and sound judgment, united to uncommon courage of spirit. As to his acquired parts, he was in the learned tongues exceedingly skilful, and he was furnished with no common measure of polite literature. What to others was difficult, he easily mastered by the force of his genius and his close application.

In every department of theology he was well versed, and a truly orthodox scribe, thoroughly instructed unto the kingdom of heaven. He peacefully discharged the duties of the pastoral office in the church at Marlborough, over which the Holy Ghost had made him Overseer, with diligence, fidelity, and great success for 27 years. Of Divine Revelation, and of the doctrines, institutions and principles of the Churches of New England, he was an able and strenuous advocate.

In giving counsel, in matters both public and private, he was conspicuous for his integrity and wisdom. He sincerely loved his friends, his country, and the whole Church of Christ. He was, in short, an exemplar of piety, of every social virtue, and of moderation in worldly desires. In the severe pangs of his last sickness, he finished his work in patience, and if not in triumph, yet in hope, he peacefully departed.

Born December 7, 1682. Died January 6, 1731.

Even prophets do not live forever.

The above translation is the one printed in Barber's Historical Collections of Massachusetts. The Latin inscription on the stone has been carefully re-copied, and certain minor errors in Barber's transcription corrected.]

As weary pilgrims sink to quiet sleep,
As summers evening breezes soft expire,
So sinks the Christian in the arms of death
And bids the world farewell. Death is to her
But a kind passport to her native skies.
Farewell a short farewell, soon shall we meet
Where tears shall cease; and death divide no more.

The light of life, the light of reason too;
But just as manhood was unfolding fair,
His reason fled, and left him to despair.
Reader, 'twas sad; yet such may be thy fate;
Then reason justly, ere it be too late:
Discharge all duty in thy present sphere,
For there's no work, device, nor knowledge here.

Felton.

[Urn and Willow Trees.]

70. In memory of | Mrs. | BETSY, | wife of | Mr. George Felton, | who died | Dec. 11, 1828, | Æt. 34.

Farewell my Child and partner dear,
No earthly ties can hold me hear:
The Soverign calls I must obey,
And fly from earth and friends away.

Footstone: B. F.

[She was Betsy Hunting of Hubbardston.]

[Urn and Willow Tree.]

71. In | memory of | Mr. | JOEL FELTON, | who died | Jan. 2, 1829, | Æt. 66.

His head is bow,d beneath the storm,
The grave conceales his peaceful form
Faded in death now pale he lies
And fills the mourners hearts with sighs.

Footstone: J. F.

[Urn and Willow Tree.]

72. In memory of | Mr. | LEVI FELTON | who died | Oct. 21, 1829, | Æt. 30.

My flesh shall slumber in the ground
Till the last trumpets joyful sound.

74. In memory of | Mr. WILLIAM | ORISON FELTON. | who died | April 22, 1833, | Æt. 20.

So let it be—for ne'er on earth
Should man his home prepare;
The spirit feels its heavenly birth
And spurns at mortal care.

Footstone: W. O. F.

Gates.

[Urn and Willow Tree.]

75. A memento of | Col. ABRAHAM GATES, | who died | July 22, 1829: | Æt. 44.

Integrity and Uprightness, | Honor and Generosity, | Were | With kind Affections | And public spirit, | in him combined:

Other's a better world on high;
Hope on thou pious breast;
Faint not, thou traveller! on the sky
Thy weary feet shall rest.

76. A memento of | Mrs. CATHARINE GATES, | Relict of Mr. Silas Gates, | who died | November 27, A. D. 1836; | Æt. 76 years.

As a parent and sister she was | revered and loved. As a neighbor | she was kind and benevolent | And by all who knew her, her | memory will ever be fondly | cherished.

"Thus she moved from stage to stage,
Smiles of earth and heaven attending;
Softly sinking down in age,
And through death to God ascending.
